

Christine E. Earley, PhD, CPA (inactive)

Dr. Christine Earley is the Michael A. Ruane Endowed Professor of Accountancy in the Providence College School of Business. From 2014-2016 she took a professional leave from the college to serve as a faculty fellow in the Global Services Centre of KPMG, LLP, overseeing academic research initiatives for the firm and serving on the global audit methodology implementation team. Her research interests are primarily in the areas of auditing and professional ethics, and she utilizes behavioral methods to study auditors' judgments and on-the-job learning. Her research has been published in The Accounting Review, Contemporary Accounting Research, Auditing: A Journal of Practice and Theory, Current Issues in Auditing, Behavioral Research in Accounting, Accounting and the Public Interest, Business Horizons, and Issues in Accounting Education. She currently serves as an editor of Auditing: A Journal of Practice and Theory, and previously served as an Associate Editor for Accounting and the Public Interest. She has instructed the annual American Accounting Association (AAA) Auditing Section Audit Educators' Bootcamp since 2011, and she is currently serving as President of the AAA Auditing Section until August of 2022. She received her PhD in accounting and Master's in cognitive psychology from The University of Pittsburgh and her undergraduate degree in accounting from The University of Connecticut. Before obtaining her PhD, Christine was an auditor in the Hartford, CT office of KPMG.