

Brandon Gipper completed his PhD at the University of Chicago Booth School of Business in 2016. He earned a BS in economics and mathematics and a master in accounting from the University of Michigan Ross School of Business.

Gipper's primary research focuses on empirical accounting topics, including the effects of financial reporting and disclosure on corporate governance, regulatory interaction in the audit industry, and accounting standard setting, as well as economic questions related to auditing, the firm's information environment, capital formation, and outcomes for employees.