Summary: The Public Company Accounting Oversight Board ("Board" or "PCAOB") is proposing amendments to Rule 4003(b) to eliminate the Board's self-imposed requirement that it regularly inspect each registered public accounting firm that plays a substantial role in the preparation or furnishing of an audit report but does not issue an audit report. The Board is also proposing to amend Rule 4003 to eliminate the Board's self-imposed requirement to conduct an inspection of any firm that has issued an audit report, even if the firm does not regularly issue audit reports. The proposed amendments do not affect the Board's inspection cycles for larger firms or for firms that regularly issue audit reports, nor do the proposed amendments limit the Board's discretion to inspect any registered firm at any time.

RELEASE

I. Amendments To Rule 4003

Under the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002 ("the Act") and PCAOB Rules, it is unlawful for any public accounting firm to issue, or to play a substantial role in the preparation or furnishing of, an audit report with respect to any issuer unless the firm is registered with the Board.^{1/} The Act also requires the Board to conduct a continuing program of inspections of certain registered firms. The inspection requirement, however, extends to a smaller scope of firms than does the registration requirement. Although the Act authorizes the Board to inspect any registered firm at any time, the Act requires inspection only of a registered firm that "regularly provides audit reports" for issuers.

Section 104(b)(1) of the Act specifies minimum frequencies with which the Board must conduct inspections of such firms. Section 104(b)(1)(B) of the Act provides that with respect to each registered firm that "regularly provides audit reports for 100 or fewer issuers," the Board shall conduct an inspection at least once every three years.^{2/}

In 2003, the Board adopted PCAOB Rule 4003, "Frequency of Inspections." Consistent with Section 104(b)(1)(B) of the Act, Rule 4003(b) provides that certain registered firms will be inspected at least once every three years. In two distinct respects, however, Rule 4003(b)'s scope goes beyond the Act's requirement to inspect firms that "regularly provide" audit reports for issuers. First, under Rule 4003(b), the Board must inspect a registered firm that, while registered, issues any audit report with respect to an issuer, regardless of whether the firm "regularly" does so. Second, Rule 4003(b) provides for regular inspections of any registered firm that plays a substantial role in the preparation or furnishing of an audit report, even if the firm never issues an audit report with respect to an issuer.

The Board's experience in the first years of the inspection program have affected the Board's view on the appropriateness of a self-imposed requirement to devote Board resources to regular inspections of such firms. Registered

^{1/} See Section 102(a) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 2100. As used in the Act, the Board's rules, and this release, "audit report," "issuer," and "play a substantial role" are defined terms. See Sections 2(a)(4) and 2(a)(7) of the Act and PCAOB Rules 1001(a)(vi), 1001(i)(iii), and 1001(p)(ii).

^{2/} Section 104(b)(1)(A) of the Act and PCAOB Rule 4003(a) provide for annual inspections of registered firms that issue audit reports for more than 100 issuers. The requirements concerning inspections of such firms would be unaffected by the amendments that the Board is proposing.

RELEASE

public accounting firms currently number 1,775. Of those firms, there are 694 that have issued audit reports with respect to issuers in both of the two most recent calendar years, and 135 others that have issued such audit reports in one of the two most recent calendar years. The Board has determined that the focus of its regular inspection program should be squarely on such firms, and that the Board's rules should not require regular diversion of resources to inspect firms that do not issue audit reports or firms that have not done so more recently than three years ago. This is consistent with the risk-based focus that the Board generally brings to bear in considering the most prudent allocation of its inspection resources.

Accordingly, the Board proposes to amend Rule 4003(b) to eliminate these two respects in which the Rule goes beyond the Act. The proposed amendments would not diminish the Board's authority to inspect any registered firm at any time. Rather, the amendments would more precisely align the rule and the Act regarding the universe of registered firms that the Board must inspect, while leaving to the Board's discretion whether and when to inspect other firms.

A. Leaving to the Board's Discretion When to Inspect Firms That Play a Substantial Role But Do Not Provide Audit Reports

As noted above, Rule 4003(b) currently requires the Board to conduct at least triennial inspections of registered firms that play a substantial role in the preparation or furnishing of an audit report, even if those firms do not issue audit reports with respect to issuers. Of currently registered firms, 221 indicated on their registration applications that they either expected to play a substantial role in the year in which they filed their application, or that they had played a substantial role that year or the previous year, without having issued, or expecting to issue, an audit report in that same period.^{3/} As of March 31, 2007, 28 of those 221 firms had issued audit reports after becoming registered, but 193 of those firms (including 164 non-U.S. firms and 29 U.S. firms) remained in the category of "substantial role only" firms.^{4/}

^{3/} The Board has not systematically collected or compiled data to determine the extent, if any, to which the category of registered firms that play a substantial role without issuing audit reports now includes additional firms that first played a substantial role after the time period covered by the registration application.

^{4/} This Release uses the phrase "substantial role only" to identify the relevant category of firms and to emphasize the distinction between this category of firms (which play a substantial role but do not issue audit reports with respect

At this time, the Board believes that requiring itself regularly to inspect each such firm is not the best use of the Board's resources.^{5/} The Board believes that, at present, it is better to direct those resources toward addressing the policies, practices, and procedures of the firms that are ultimately responsible for the audit report on the issuer's financial statements.

If the proposed amendments are adopted by the Board and approved by the Commission, the Board would continue to monitor whether Board resources should in some instances be directed toward inspections of "substantial role only" firms. For example, Board inspections of firms that have issued audit reports sometimes involve reviewing aspects of the audit that involve the work of a "substantial role only" firm. Information that comes to the Board in that way, as well as information that may come from other sources, could lead the Board to exercise its discretion to inspect a particular "substantial role only" firm. In addition, if the proposed amendments are adopted and approved, the Board would continue to monitor whether other developments suggest, at some future date, that all "substantial role only" firms should be subject to Board inspection with some specified minimum frequency.

B. Leaving to the Board's Discretion When to Inspect Firms that Provide Audit Reports Only Irregularly

In its present form, Rule 4003(b) includes an inspection requirement that is triggered if "during any of the three prior calendar years," a registered firm "issued an audit report with respect to at least one . . . issuer." This requirement goes beyond the Act's requirements as well, in that it encompasses firms beyond those that "regularly provide" audit reports for issuers.

to issuers) and the separate category of firms that play a substantial role in some audits, but separately perform other audits in which they issue the audit report for the issuer (for example, a non-U.S. firm that plays a substantial role in the audit of a U.S. issuer by auditing a foreign subsidiary, but that separately has a foreign private issuer audit client for which it provides audit reports). Even with the proposed amendments, Rule 4003 would continue to provide for regular periodic inspection of firms in the latter category by virtue of their issuing audit reports. In any such inspection, the Board could review, among other things, the firm's work and its system of quality control in relation to audits in which the firm played a substantial role.

^{5/} The Board has not yet inspected a "substantial role only" firm. The Board has deferred inspections of such firms in order to focus on inspecting firms that have issued audit reports.

RELEASE

The Board believes that requiring itself regularly to inspect each such firm is not the best use of the Board's resources. Accordingly, the Board is proposing two additions to Rule 4003 that would more precisely align the Rule with the Act by giving meaning to the Act's "regularly provides" language. First, proposed paragraph (e) would allow the Board to forego an otherwise required inspection of a firm if, in two consecutive years of the inspection cycle, and before the Board conducts an inspection, the firm does not issue any audit reports. With this provision, the rule would operate as follows with respect to registered firms that issue audit reports for 100 or fewer issuers. Every such firm that issues an audit report in Year 1 would, by operation of Rule 4003(b), be subject to regular inspection in Year 2, Year 3, or Year 4, and the Board would be required to inspect in Year 4 any of those firms that it did not inspect in Year 2 or Year 3. Under proposed paragraph (e), however, the Board would have the discretion to forego that Year 4 inspection with respect to any firm that, in both Year 2 and Year 3, did not issue an audit report.^{6/} In terms of the Act's requirement, such a firm would be considered not to be regularly providing audit reports for issuers.

Second, the Board would add a provision to existing paragraph (b), and include a provision in proposed paragraph (e), specifying that no inspection requirement is triggered solely on the basis of the firm consenting to an issuer's use of a previously issued audit report.^{7/} The provision would be included in paragraph (b), so that no such consent would trigger a requirement that the firm be inspected in the ensuing three years. The provision would also be included in paragraph (e), so that no such consent would preclude the operation of paragraph (e) in circumstances where paragraph (e) would otherwise apply. Again, in terms of the Act's requirement, any firm whose conduct in the relevant time frame is limited to consenting to the use of previously issued audit reports would be considered not to be regularly providing audit reports.

^{6/} The example in the text is in terms of Rule 4003(b)'s requirement for at least one inspection in each three-year period. In December 2006, the Board adopted Rule 4003(d), which, pursuant to authority provided in Section 104(b)(2) of the Act, allows a longer period for the first and second inspections of some registered firms. See PCAOB Release No. 2006-008, Amendments to Board Rules Relating to Inspections (December 19, 2006). (The Board has submitted Rule 4003(d) for Commission approval and that submission is pending.) Proposed paragraph (e) is written so that it would apply whenever a firm, for two consecutive years in any inspection cycle of three or more years, does not issue an audit report.

^{7/} A registered firm's act of consenting to an issuer's inclusion of a previously issued audit report in a new Commission filing is treated as issuance of an audit report sufficient to trigger the existing Rule 4003(b) requirement that the Board conduct an inspection.

C. Conforming Amendments

The Board also proposes to amend Rule 4003(d) to conform to the amendments proposed above. Rule 4003(d) extends the time period within which the Board must conduct the first and second inspections of firms that Rule 4003(b) requires the Board to inspect, including "substantial role only" firms. If the Board adopts the amendments proposed above, the Board would also amend Rule 4003(d) to conform to those amendments, as set out in Appendix A.
